More details on Istanbul Conference and a conference book will be published this year.

May: Kalliopi Amygdalou : "Byzantium as a referent in early-20th century architecture: The University of Ionia, Saint Demetrius and Aristotelous Street". On 29th May 2015 at 19.15 Hellenic Centre, London www.helleniccentre.org and <http://www.helleniccentre.org/pages/events-culture/upcoming-events.php> Doctor

Amydalou sums up her talk as:

"The late 19th century saw a valorisation of Byzantine heritage both in Greece and abroad - yet for different reasons - with significant implications for architecture, archaeology and urban planning. By examining selected examples, this lecture aims to highlight the plurality of ideological flows and symbolisms that these buildings acquired in their respective contexts in a period of competition between national, religious and imperial identities in the region."

2nd July: Edward Charlton-Jones: 'White Russian Émigré Society in Constantinople, 1918-23'. Talk and photos of local cartoons.

And:

George Vassiadis: Egypt: the Greek and Levantine Built Heritage as it is Today. Following his recent trip to Egypt will talk about surviving churches, schools and residential buildings in Cairo and Alexandria, with photos of Port Said and Ismailia.

September or October: John Mole and Rebetika music (with dinner). To be confirmed.

December. The works of Liotard at Royal Academy: we are hoping to organise a group visit to be followed by dinner. LHF members are invited to contact us expressing their interest, giving their preferred dates and times.

Promotional Notice on LHF Conference, London: 2, 3, & 4 November 2016.

Call for papers expected soon.

The island of Crete has been of major importance in the history of the Aegean throughout the ages. Professor Dr Ergun Lafli of 9 Eylul University of Izmir, has given a talk on 11 March on the role played by Crete and Cretan populations in the Aegean and southern Greece from Antiquity to today.

Quote: Historian Eugene Rogan explains one of the most poorly understood aspects of the First World War – the defeat of the Ottomans and the clearing of the way for a new Middle East that has endured until today. The Ottoman Empire was one of the most powerful states in Europe and ruled the Middle East but had weakened significantly by 1914. Rogan explains how Britain, France and Russia decided to finish off the empire by invading Gallipoli after the Ottomans joined the Central Powers. Rogan teaches the modern history of the Middle East at the University of Oxford. His book, Frontiers of the State in the Late Ottoman Empire, won the Albert Hourani Prize. The Fall of the Ottomans The Great War in the Middle East, 1914-1920

News from Researchers and 'Friends of LHF':

Richard Seivers is a resident of Daintree, Queensland, Australia.
Istanbul, Turkey and the Arnold Family, 1862 to 1924
I grew up in a bay side suburb of Melbourne, Victoria, Australia and as long as I can remember I have possessed a great fondness for Istanbul and Turkey. Always proud knowing that my Mother Kathleen Dorothy Arnold was born in Haydarpasa [Haidar Pasha] on 20 May 1915 and my Grandfather, Cyril Henry Arnold and Great Grandfather, Edward Thomas Arnold were also born in Constantinople [Istanbul]. I understood that the Arnold Family were involved with the English Cemetery at Haydarpasa and that another Great Grandfather, Philip Le Feuvre was a diver who help raise the Russian Fleet at Sevastopol in the Crimea.

It would be interesting to know if there were any conversions by one of the Bonofacio's descendants. Chris Stamboulis iamstos@gmail.com is researching his ancestor named Plato who had two sisters Andromache and Athena, and a brother named Rallis. He is looking for any connection with the famous Ralli family, or the reason why he would have been given this name. How strong was the Ralli name to bear any influence politically or artistically in 18th century Constantinople?

Again, thank you all for your help, thoughts and suggestions.

- ✚ Chris Horner was recently able to electronically scan the diary of Donald Andrus, who came out from England to Smyrna in 1889 to work as an assistant engineer on the Smyrna-Aidin (Ottoman) railway under Edward Purser, and eventually married Purser's second daughter, Sarah (sister of Chris' great grandmother, Dora). The diary was kept almost daily from 1889-1890, and then less frequently between 1893 and 1903. Descendants of Donald Andrus and Sarah Purser in Toronto, Canada, kindly allowed Chris to scan the original of the diary and gave permission for it to appear on the LHF site.
- ✚ Chris has given us several files of this diary which are being uploaded onto our Levantine Heritage family recollections.
- ✚ But furthermore today Chris informs us that he also obtained in 2014 the actual physical diaries of Edward Purser, from another relative in Canada, who is also a descendant of Dora Purser (Edward's oldest daughter) and Henry de Jongh. These diaries consist of a formidable collection of 35 bound volumes, stretching from 1862 to 1904 with virtually daily entries in a quite difficult-to-read handwriting. Chris is up to the volume for 1872, and reports that so far the overwhelming majority of entries concern the building of the railway, in its engineering, business-related and political aspects. The descendants would love to see excerpts from this Purser diary on the LHF site along with the Andrus diary, where they say, these materials can be viewed by many people, and in the context of all the other recollections and resources which we have assembled on LHF website.
- ✚ Our colleague Dr George Vassiadis who has already done some research on the 'Smyrna – Aidin railway families' will conduct further studies with Chris, but we would welcome all cooperation from any other parties who may have even more material on the Pursers in particular.

Dear Reader,

Having resigned as a trustee and Membership & Events Secretary of the Levantine Heritage Foundation, this is my last newsletter from the LHF. I wish to thank you for your kindness and cooperation during my tenure and look forward to seeing LHF members on future occasions.

Yours sincerely,

George Galdies
